Dear Felicity:

I am a little late for the deadline; hope it's not too late to be included.

[No problem!]

Yesterday was an SF/anime flea market at the main reference library downtown; we had a table of good stuff to sell, and we all did well. And now, time for a LOC on BCSFazine 436.

Hello, Sheryl! Many thanks for belated birthday wishes...I am finding that my 50th year is not much different than my 49th or 48th, so as we've all said before, it's only a number. A shame about your not getting anyone at Anticipation to respond to you...I am finding in the weeks after the convention that it was not as well organized as I had thought, but the convention was still wonderful and fun. We did finally see Up, at a second-run theatre. The Kingsway theatre is not far from home, a single screen theatre, and Up was great. Squirrel! Only Canadian fans or fans of Canadian birth can run, nominate and vote for CUFF.

My LOC...LJ is still busy, but already, I hear complaints about Twitter having no real content, in spite of some attempts to make it otherwise. Facebook seems to be responding to the challenge of Twitter with Facebook Lite, which eliminates all the games and other applications in favour of messages back and forth, with no 140 character limit.

In a few weeks, VCon 34 arrives, and best of luck to the whole committee in staging another fine con. Yvonne and I have still have fond memories of being guests at VCon 25, and hard to believe it was nine years ago.

Confirmation to Ray Seredin; Doctor Horrible's Singalong Blog is great, and certainly deserves its Hugo. Seeing the Foglios win a rocket for their Girl Genius strip was well-received, too, as was another award for WALL-E. The Pixar directors were honoured for their body of work at the Venice Film Festival, so John Lasseter, Andrew Stanton, Pete Docter and crew must be getting swamped with awards, and deservedly so.

I must tell local costumer Dawn McKechnie about Death Kappa if she doesn't know about it already...some of her costumes are monster suits, and her online name is Kaijugal. Guy in monster suits stomping on miniature cities...ah, nostalgia...

I saw mention of the Vancouver International Film Festival in the local papers...right now, people are screaming at celebrities at the Toronto International Film Festival, and that should be done in a week or so, to the relief of the rest of us. There's an Ad Astra committee meeting this afternoon, and later on this month are two costuming events, a vintage clothing and textiles gathering and a costumers swap meet. We really wanted to go to Con*cept in Montréal in October, but no money for that, and we have some commitments at Astronomicon in Rochester, NY in November. Good thing we have a desk calendar on the wall; otherwise, we'd never know what we've got coming up.

That's it for now, the day is about to get busy, see you next issue, and enjoy the upcoming autumn.

Yours,
Lloyd Penney

Hi Felicity,

A bunch of good stuff happening.

Battle for Westnoth version 1.6.5 (last maintenance release) is up on Sourceforge.

Project Gutenberg has just put up its 30,000th free ebook, an epic monster about birds. So many bird pictures in it that a reader will be amazed just looking at the pictures.

The Internet Archive has just passed 200,000 movies in their archive.

The same maniacs who made Star Wreck are working on Iron Sky.

Lovecraft movie fans will be able to see Dean Stockwell, who played Wilbur Whately [in the 1970 film The Dunwich Horror], playing Prof. Armitage in the 2009 remake.

If you knowwe this nott, read "The Dunwich Horror."

I hear steampunk fashion is coming to Vancouver soon.

Closed Circle promises to have ebooks up for sale real soon now. That will let Cherryh fans get all the out of print stuff to round out their collections.

Project Gutenberg has been putting up 1950s and 1930s science fiction stories which are public domain at the rate of two stories a day.

Some of these are from magazines I never saw before even though I was an avid reader at the time they were published. Probably because I lived way out from civilization at the time.

On the “appropriate labelling” front, a text supposed to be about screws (threaded fasteners) turned out to be about lawyers. So at least one scanner of books has a sense of humor.

Regards,
Dave Haren

Fanzines and Fun Funds

Lloyd Penney here, and the daytime fanzine lounge at Anticipation is done, and it seems to have been a success. I brought a big box of zines home, and I’d like to get rid of them, preferably by sending them to you. I have a list of zines I have at home, including a limited number of WOOF 2009, assembled at Anticipation. If you are interested in finding out what zines I have, contact me at penneys@allstream.net, and I’ll send it to you. If you ask for any zines from the list, I will send them along, but I will ask that you send some cash along to your favorite fan fund, like TAFF, DUFF, CUFF or the Corflu 50 fund. There’s also NAFF, GUFF, not sure if FFANZ is still around...

2010 TAFF Race: Nominations Open

The 2010 TAFF race (eastward: North America to Europe) is now open for nominations. The winning delegate will attend the 2010 Eastercon, Odyssey, in London over the Easter weekend, 2–5 April, 2010. (Odyssey’s website is <http://www.odyssey2010.org/>.)

To stand as a candidate, you must provide:

- * Five nominations from known fans, three of whom must be resident in North America and two resident in Europe. All of these should send a signed nomination via postal mail—or, if sending the nomination by e-mail, include a phone number for verification
- * A written platform, not exceeding 101 words
- * A $20 bond (US or Canadian dollars)
- * A pledge you will take the trip if you win

All nominations, platforms, pledges and/or bonds must arrive with either the North American or European administrator (see below) by midnight GMT on Sunday, 4 October, 2009. Provided at least two candidates meet these requirements, the distribution of ballots will begin immediately thereafter. If you have any questions, feel free to contact the administrators. If you plan to run, please alert them as soon as possible.

WHAT IS TAFF? The Trans-Atlantic Fan Fund was created in 1953 to underwrite cultural exchanges for well-known and popular fans familiar to those on both sides of the Big Pond. Since then, TAFF has sent North American fans to European conventions and European fans to North American conventions. It exists solely through the support of fandom. Delegates are selected by interested fans from all over the world, and each vote is accompanied by a donation of at least US $3 or UK £2. These votes, and the continued generosity of fandom, make TAFF possible.

More information about TAFF's history, customs, and practices may be found at the unofficial site maintained by Dave Langford at <http://taff.org.uk/>.

BookViewCafé.com Welcomes Katherine Kerr

On Friday, September 25, historical fantasy author Katherine Kerr joins the BookViewCafé.com team. Kerr spent her childhood in a Great Lakes industrial city and her adolescence in Southern California, from whence she fled to the Bay Area just in time to join a number of the Revolutions then in progress. After fleeing those in turn, she became a professional storyteller and an amateur skeptic, who regards all True Believers with a jaundiced eye. An inveterate loafer and rock and roll fan, she begrudgingly spares some time to write novels.

Kerr will be launching at Book View Café with her story, “The Bargain,” set in the fantasy world, Annwn, of her Devery series.

Visit Katherine Kerr’s bookshelf at BookViewCafé.com: <http://www.bookviewcafe.com/index.php/The-Katherine-Kerr-Bookshelf/Katherine-Kerr-Short-Stories/>.

Watch for future offerings from Kerr on Fridays at <http://www.bookviewcafe.com>.

‘Mercury Falls’ by Rob Kroese

The world is ending. Again.

Years of covering the antics of End Times cults for The Banner, a religious news magazine, have left Christine Temetri not only jaded but seriously questioning her career choice.

That is, until she meets Mercury, an anti-establishment angel who’s frittering his time away whipping up batches of Rice Krispy Treats and perfecting his ping-pong backhand instead of doing his job: helping to orchestrate Armageddon. With the end near and angels and demons debating the finer political points of the Apocalypse, Christine and Mercury accidentally foil an attempt to assassinate one Karl Grissom, a thirty-seven-year-old film school dropout about to make his big break as the Antichrist.

Now, to save the world, she must negotiate the byzantine bureaucracies of Heaven and Hell and convince the apathetic Mercury to take a stand, all the while putting up with the obnoxious mouth-breathing Antichrist.

What is Mercury Falls?

Mercury Falls is a humorous novel in the vein of The Hitchiker’s Guide to the Galaxy and Terry Pratchett’s Discworld series, centering on the adventures of a rogue angel (Mercury) at the brink of the apocalypse.

Imagine a ping-pong match pitting Douglas Adams and Neil Gaiman against C.S. Lewis and G.K. Chesterton. And when you get bored with that, imagine a really funny, well-written book.

‘Doctor Who’: Four Weddings and a Certain ‘Time And Relative Dimensions In Space’ Craft

One of the minds behind 1994’s Academy-Award-nominated film Four Weddings and a Funeral is writing a script for series five (or 31) of the world’s longest-running sci-fi series, Doctor Who.

The film’s writer, Richard Curtis, who also worked on such British series as Blackadder and The Vicar of Dibley (where he won a few BAFTA awards and Primetime Emmys along the way) has been asked by head writer Steven Moffat to write an episode for the upcoming series.

This story has been confirmed by both the BBC and Curtis’ agent.

According to the London tabloid The Sun, the story will feature (SPOILER ALERT) “a famous historical character battling against a monster alongside the Doctor and his companion.” I don’t know who or what monster (please be a new one, please be a new one, please be a new one) they’ll be battling. I guess we have to wait ’til next April at least to find out.

As some of you know, Dawn French (The Vicar of Dibley), Rowan Atkinson ([the] Blackadder), and Four Weddings and a Funeral’s male lead, Hugh Grant (who paid £10,000 so he could be teamed up with the 10th Doctor, David Tennant, at a fund-raising golf tournament this spring), are known to be fans of the Doctor’s adventures. So is it likely that Richard Curtis is also a fan of the series? I don’t know that personally, but [Curtis], having been born in 1956, then moving to Britain in 1967, would have likely watched the classic series in the Troughton or Pertwee Doctor era and could have become a fan then.

Sorry, but I just sold my mother’s old house in Powell River, so I’m quite busy right now. I hope to be seeing you sometime soon.
