TOC

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Author/Contributor</th>
<th>Pages</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>News and Notes</td>
<td>Christopher J. Garcia</td>
<td>2-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Letters Of Comment</td>
<td>Christopher J. Garcia</td>
<td>4-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Editorial</td>
<td>Jean Martin</td>
<td>6-7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dreams of the City</td>
<td>España Sheriff</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Communiqué From Costume-Con 26</td>
<td>Lance Moore</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SiliCon: A Gathering of Friends</td>
<td>Jean Martin</td>
<td>10-14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Robert Meyer Burnett at SiliCon</td>
<td>Dr. Noe</td>
<td>15-19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Halloween Costuming Around the Bay</td>
<td>Jean Martin</td>
<td>20-25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A Castro Street Halloween</td>
<td>Sasha Nealand</td>
<td>26-28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ushering in the Dickens Fair Season</td>
<td>Jean Martin</td>
<td>29-31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LA Decompression</td>
<td>Jean Martin</td>
<td>32-37</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BASFA Minutes: meeting 848</td>
<td>Jean Martin</td>
<td>38-39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BASFA Minutes: meeting 849</td>
<td>Jean Martin</td>
<td>39-40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bay Area Fannish Calendar</td>
<td>David Moyce</td>
<td>41-50</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Science Fiction/San Francisco is the twice monthly news zine for the San Francisco Bay Area. All issues can be found at www.efanzines.com. All articles and photos are copyright 2006 by the original creators. Used with permission.
BayCon is moving along with plans for a big twenty-fifth anniversary edition. It’s the first to take place anywhere other than the DoubleTree San Jose, and the plans on how to use the San Mateo Marriott are coming together. The staff also announced that a site for the 2008 through 2010 BayCons has been found. We can look forward to three years at the Santa Clara Hyatt, right across the street from Great America! The Guests of Honor for the 2007 edition have still not been confirmed except for Kitty Crowe, last year’s ChairPurple, who will serve as Fan GoH.

There’s been some activity on eFanzines.com that folks should look into. The various projects to preserve fannish heritage have managed to get several important pieces of that seven-decade-old puzzle into plain sight. The program book from NyCon III, the late New York WorldCon, has been scanned and put up. It’s a very interesting read, especially if you’ve been to a recent WorldCon and want to see how things have changed. Another very interesting read is Mike Glyer’s File 770 #7. It’s an issue that’ll really show a great view of what’s out there back in the 1970s! There’s also a fine collection of Ken Slater’s reviews for Nebula up too.

Other than those, you might want to give Ned Brooks’ always dependable It Goes On The Shelf a read, or David Burton’s Pixel #7. Pixel features not only another damned Chris Garcia article, but wonderful pieces from folks like Ted White, Eric Mayer and Peter Sullivan. Peter might actually be the best Fanzine Reviewer out there at the moment.

Of course, it wouldn’t be an eFanzines update without mentioning that issue 102 of The Drink Tank is up and having a good gander. Some special guests for the Computer-themed issue include Frank Wu, Arnie Katz and Grant Kruger plus LoCs from, you guessed it, Eric Mayer, John Purcell, Lloyd Penney and more.

Speaking of John Purcell, his zine and furthermore..., the addendum to In A Prior Lifetime, has been released and is another in a long line of good reads from Texas. There’s a lot of talk about an article that appeared in the last Prior Lifetime going on on LJ, mostly around Ted White’s Best Fan Writer/Artist Hugo column. It’s an interesting article, and the debate that is going to show up in the next issue will probably be most entertaining, as folks like Kevin Standlee and Andy Trembley are making it a point to comment.

Cheryl Morgan is back in the BArea for a few weeks!
would be another one. Art Widner also won in the 1990s and was a very popular delegate over to Australia. Janice Gelb won in 1999 and even offered to work on programming at the 1999 WorldCon where she was the delegate. It must have been a good trip because she married an Aussie and moved down there!

There's a long tradition connecting TAFF and the BArea, and as far as I can tell, it started with Terry Carr running in 1959. Carr, a fannish legend for his writing and for inventing hoaxfan Carl Brandon, ran in 1959 against Bjo Wells (later Bjo Trimble) and Don Ford. Ford won by a comfortable margin, but Terry ran again in 1965 and won, making the trip to the UK. Carr would go on to a long career as a pro, but he was always a fan too.

One of Carr's cohorts in the Brandon hoax was Ron Ellik, who was the first BAreaan to win TAFF, in 1961. Sadly, he passed away in 1968. I'm not sure Marion Zimmer Bradley was living in the BArea when she ran in 1963 (I don't think she made the move until she graduated, which would have been 1965 or so), but she was a major part of BArea fandom for years. Charlie Brown, I mean Charles Brown, ran in 1970. He hadn't come to the Bay yet, but he also would eventually come out here and make an impact with his zine Locus.

The 1965 race that Terry Carr won also featured a very important name in the history of SF fandom: Bill Donaho. He is a legendary figure who lived a long, fannish life. He didn't win, losing to his fellow Bay Area runner, but he is still very well-remembered.

Robert Lichtman ran in 1987 and won in 1989. He came in third in a crowded field in 1987 which included Mike Glicksohn among others. His win in 1989 was impressive too, over Luke McGuff. His 'Report in Progress' is at http://taff.org.uk/reports/rl0.html

I'm the first BArea TAFF candidate since 1989, far as I can tell, though Mary Kay also has strong ties to the BArea and was on the committee for ConJose. This is the first race with two people of such strong BArea connection since both Terry Carr and Bill Donaho were up against each other. It'll be interesting to see how things break down in the final voting, as vote splitting is almost certain to happen because of the physical location of both of us.
Letters Of Comment

Kevin Standlee: You’re up first!

Thanks for another issue of SF/SF, and for the convention reports. These are among my favorite bits of fanwriting, as I’ve said before, and not just for the egoboo of seeing myself in a photo in my WSFS Captain’s uniform.

Chris Garcia responds: You look good in the suit. I love con reports myself, and I write a lot of them, often three or four different ones for the same con, taking on small aspects for a couple and doing one big one for SF/SF on the entire events. I think España’s view was a wonderful one, and I’m hoping that she’ll give us one of LosCon as well.

Re: España getting stuck at San Jose Caltrain: I despair of people who work for a transit agency (the Amtrak/Caltrain employees at San Jose Diridon Station) who have no idea how to use transit. If she should ever be in that situation again, the solution is to walk to the light rail station (adjacent to the train station—it connects to Santa Clara Caltrain) or walk to the Doubletree (which you can see from the Metro/Airport station) if walking half a mile or so doesn’t trouble you. That ticket agent at Diridon Station should have known that. I certainly did. But then, I’m a transit geek.

I’ve discovered that a lot of transit folks know a lot about the area and how to get from where to where. Sadly, I’ve also been misled by these same officials at times when I’ve asked for directions. More than once they’ve given me a detailed recitation of how to get somewhere, and they’ll always be 100% on the money as to where the place is, but the directions will not match up and I’ll get lost. It happened to me getting from the Arena to Harry’s Hi-Life a few months ago. Terrible directions.

Chris for TAFF!

Damn right!

Kevin

Thanks much, Kev.

John Purcell: you’re the next contestant with an eLoC!

Oh, no... Another hoax bid? What you folks could do is make it semi-serious that you’re bidding for the 2009 WesterCon, then pull out of the race six months before the site selection happens, then turn your bidding parties into a reason to host an annual relaxacon a couple months before/after WesterCon weekend. Minn-stf is still holding Minneapolis in ’73 Parties at worldcons, and they are usually a ton of fun. It’s up to you folks, though. Do what you will.

It’s not a hoax bid, since that would mean we’d be expected to put on a hoax con. It’s an “educational exercise/party excuse!” This one’ll be a little different from Hollister in 2008. Trust me, you’ll be amused.

The “Fanzines Published” section should be much fuller next time around. Lots of good stuff has been posted to efanzines in the last week, which explains why I’m a bit behind in my loccing. Oh, well. This is, to me, a happy situation; I’d rather have something fun to read to get away from the heavy reading I do for my school work than nothing at all.

You’ve got a mention, as well as the few others that have come along. I’m hoping for at least one more Vegas Fandom Weekly in the next couple of weeks. The only zine that I regularly LoC that I haven’t recently is and furthermore…, which I’ll do as soon as I’m done commenting on your LoC!

Yes, Bob Tucker was a seminal figure in fandom. According to his own stories, Bob discovered fandom somewhere around 1934 (I think, but don’t quote me on this; it may have been as early as 1932), which would make his length in fandom something like 72 years! Phenomenal. He will be sorely missed. Already next year’s NaSFic has been dedicated in his honor.

I read that, and I’m very pleased by the choice to honor him like that. I’ll be there and hope to Smoooooooth with a few folks.

Jean Martin, I wouldn’t go so far as saying that I’m “well-respected in the fanzine world.” Yeah, I’ve been involved with fanzine fandom off and on for 30 years now, but I am in no way, shape, or form an expert on things fannish. I keep forgetting things that I used to know very well 20-some years ago. My current incarnation in fanac has been a re-learning experience, and I have had to re-read books and old zines to refresh my memory banks.

You’re just being modest, Johnny-boy. Why else would I choose you to nominate me for TAFF? Everyone in fandom knows that John Purcell is the only one who knows what’s going on! Fans fall at your feet and kiss the hem of your robes! Or at least that’s what I heard… I think…

However, Jean, you are so right about something that does not need to be researched: there is, indeed, “something special going on here” in fanzine fandom. It is called Community. This is very unique in a hobby group, and it makes being a science fiction and fantasy fan so much fun. Over the years I was involved in Minn-stf and in fanzine fandom the first time around (1973-1992), I made a lot of great friends. This is one reason why I can’t wait for Corflu Quire; people I haven’t seen in person since the early and mid-80s will be there, and some I have never met at all, yet I’ve corresponded with them since the mid-70s. It will be fun, and a very special time, too.

I’m very excited for CorFlu, and the fact that there’s something special here is really more evident there than anywhere else. If you get a chance, Jean, you should try and make it to a CorFlu. It’s a very different con experience and a lot of fun. You’d also get to see folks like Ted White and Art Widner in their natural habitats.

Hmm. Lloyd Penney wonders if we’re in the midst of another fanzine resurgence. Personally, I think we’re riding a wave of fanzine activity that hasn’t crested yet. Eventually it will break on the shore and recede, but that may not happen for awhile. In the meantime, I’m enjoying it. Like Lloyd, I seem to be writing more and more locs each month, and may have to curtail my loccing a bit to accommodate my other present needs. Until then, it’s fun.

Damn straight! We’re just seeing what can happen in the eZining world. It started with Foyer showing us all how it’s done, and then Arnie really letting us know the full potential of eZining. I’d say the explosion of 2005 really pushed us towards the future of fanzines in a way that I’m most excited about.

Tilly the Wonderdog?!? Okay; provide a picture, please.

Yeah, I wanna see one too!

Well, well. Page 7 has the SF/SF rogues gallery. Now I can put more faces to names. Thank you for including this. Why does Andy look like he’s about to hit the photographer, and Kevin Standlee resembles Captain Steubing from The Love Boat? Quite the motley crew you’ve got here.

That’s Kevin’s outfit from when he was the Captain of the WSFS Armadillo during WorldCon 2005. It’s a great little suit, too! We’re a motley crew, indeed, but our hearts are in the right places.

I am really enjoying España Sherriff’s column. Already, her writing has improved a great deal since she’s begun writing this column. Last week she locced my zine, and if she ever decides to write a fan arkle and submit it to me, I would be honored to read and publish said fan arkle. Keep it up, España; this is good stuff, and I’m gaining insights into what makes you fannishly tick.

Well, when that happens (and it will!), remember that it was Jean and I that brought her into the Fan Writing world. (Also remember that you’re not allowed to ask her for an article unless she’s already finished hers for SF/SF! We got Dibs!)

Nice con reports and all to round this issue out. It certainly sounds like the Bay Area is a hotbed of fannish activity, and I’m getting a bit jealous.

You could always move out here! Sky-high rents and an often strained job market are calling!

And with that, I’ll wrap this up. I need to get into the toolbox in the garage to find a socket wrench to fix my son’s skateboard wheels. Two don’t spin properly, so it’s time to play “dad the mechanic,” a limited role that I play once in a while. Maybe it’s more like a cameo or a walk-on. I dunno. Either way, my abilities as a mechanic are quite limited.

There’s another reason why I shouldn’t have kids of my own: I’d have no idea how to fix things that broke. If your abilities are quite limited, mine would be nearly criminal.

All the best,
John Purcell

By Jean Martin
Editor

Wow, SiliCon was a lot of fun this year. It’s a much smaller convention but it packs a wallop. I remember I enjoyed it last year as well. So I wanted to experience as much of it as I could, even though I had rehearsals for a performance at a PEERS Dickens Ball, and the actual performance and the ball itself, all on that weekend. So I decided I’d go to SiliCon, at the San Jose Doubletree Hotel, on Friday evening and all day on Sunday. My articles on both events are in this issue.

As Chris and España stated in our last issue, it was great to hang out with our staff, and our first ever panel was quite a success as well. It really is a good feeling to know that there are so many wonderful people who contribute to and not only read our eZine. I finally got to meet one of our regular LOCers, Kevin Standlee. And I echo Chris’s sentiment that little did we know a year ago when we took over SF/SF that we’d be filling a room full of people at a convention!

I also got to go to the L.A. Burning Man Decompression block party recently. It made me feel like kicking myself for not going to Burning Man this past Labor Day weekend. On the other hand, going to Decompression more than compensated for it. And I didn’t have to plan, pack, camp, or drive to it. Not to mention having to brave the heat, cold and Playa dust. Although the latter is part of the experience and I don’t mind it at all. But you have to be in a good mental, physical and emotional state to do well in those conditions and I wasn’t at that time. My article on Decompression is in this issue as well.

Lastly, as I mentioned in my response to Lloyd Penney’s LOC in our last issue, I’m actually in much better spirits now and am looking forward to the coming holiday season. I’ve always dreaded colder weather and darker and shorter evenings since I moved here to the U.S. in 1987. Being from the Philippines, I’m used to almost the same amount of light and darkness year round, and of course, much warmer temperatures and humid conditions. But I love all the holidays and I think this time, for the first time in a long time, I’m not too worried about the weather and the darkness.

Halloween is one of my favorite holidays. We didn’t have that in the Philippines and the opportunity to dress up and party is just such an awesome concept to me! I got an early start with Halloween as one of the costuming groups I belong to, the Black Fleet Star Pirates’ Guild, had their party early—two weekends before Halloween itself. Then I went to three Halloween parties the weekend before Halloween. My coverage of these events are in this issue. Dickens Fair is another costuming opportunity. Got a taste of that beforehand as well with the PEERS Dickens Ball.

Thanksgiving and Christmas are coming up too. And, now that most of my family has moved into the area, it will be nice to spend Christmas with them. There’s nothing like Christmas with family! Christmas is my favorite holiday.

Also, since Thanksgiving is coming up and I won’t be writing another editorial until December, I just wanted to take this opportunity to thank everyone involved in SF/SF. Everyone’s so nice and easy to work with! I really love being part of SF/SF. Specifically, David has been so professional with his editing and proofreading, turning things around immediately. And of course, he spends a lot of time putting the calendar together, which a lot of people find useful. Eva has really made the eZine a lot more colorful, with more style and flair, and with more robust functionality. And she has been so awesome about getting us published on time! España adds more depth with her column. It’s great to have someone write about books and other topics of interest to fandom and not just reviews of events. Last but not the least, it’s such a pleasure to work with Chris, and as I’ve said in the past, our interests match up so we cover a much wider range of fandom than either of us could do separately.

Hope you all enjoyed Halloween and have a great Thanksgiving!

Join our crew:

We are looking for writers to cover local events, conventions, fan groups and the fannish scene in general.

Contact Jean Martin and Chris Garcia at:
SFinSF@gmail.com
As I write this Halloween is just a few days away; the air has turned cold, pumpkins decorate front yards, and everyone I know is discussing their costumes. And while I love Halloween more than any other celebration, I’ve suddenly found myself feeling a little wistful as I realize there is nothing out there to scare me right now. The torture-horror genre that’s suddenly re-emerged with the Saw series and movies like Hostel doesn’t do anything for me, and while the j-horror remakes can be fun, the ones currently available aren’t setting my pulse pounding. This got me to thinking about the last time I was truly scared at the movies.

I’ve always been afraid of zombies, ever since I saw Night of the Living Dead. While there are a handful of non-zombie movies that have scared me to some degree—Silence of the Lambs, The Others, Alien—and plenty of movies that have had scares in them, the ones that literally keep me awake at night are almost all zombie flicks. And the last one to haunt my dreams was the remake of Dawn of the Dead. I wasn’t just scared… I was terrified. I watched it in the theater when it came out and it scared me badly enough to make me wonder why I was putting myself through the experience. I’ve been afraid to rewatch it alone. It was fantastic.

Unless you’ve been living under a rock for the last couple of years, you probably already know: zombies are massive. Everywhere you look, there they are. The videogame industry seemed to be the first to embrace this new wave with the Resident Evil series, quickly followed by a slew of others. In film, Shaun of the Dead, 28 Days Later, Land of the Dead and Dawn of the Dead were all big-budget flicks in a genre that used to be decidedly B. Not that the indie and direct-to-DVD shelves aren’t well stocked with the undead as well. In comics, several titles including The Walking Dead and the disturbing and occasionally hilarious Marvel Zombies have recently graced the shelves. And last month marked the release of World War Z: An Oral History of the Zombie Wars from the creator of The Zombie Survival Guide, Max Brooks.

And now they’ve managed to break the fourth wall. In the past few years over a dozen cities including Calgary, DC, Pittsburgh and even our own beloved San Francisco have been host to Zombie Walks (or Shambles) where hordes of the undead infest the streets and infect passersby.

But shambling decaying hordes aren’t the only face of zombiedom. Although for centuries vampires have cornered the market on undead glamour, in recent years zombies have begun to reclaim their place on the stage, thanks to people like San Francisco’s own Monique Motil who until 2005 hosted Zombie Pinups; simply the best place for hot zombie flesh.

Although Motil has moved on from flesh to bone creating Sartorial Creatures, the site carries on under new management.

And if you prefer your sexy undead “live,” San Francisco will not let you down even there. Creepshow Peepshow has put on a couple of shows where the acts included more zombie burlesque than any one person ought to see in a lifetime, and we even have our own all-dead burlesque troupe: The Living Dead Girlz, who will steal your heart, and brain and other organs, if you venture too close to the stage.

www.zombiepinups.com
www.livingdeadgirlz.com
Communiqué From Costume-Con 26

By Lance Moore
Contributing Writer

Costume-Con 26 in Silicon Valley will be the place to share, compete, and celebrate your costumes (or your doll’s costumes, or your kid’s, or your design for a costume)! Space cadets, living history re-enactors, textile designers, theater designers, furry mascots, cosplayers, fantasy costumers, pro or hall costumers: CC26 looks forward to mixing it up with all types of costumers (and those who appreciate costumes, such as photographers and artists). Costume-Con will feature a wild Friday social, three different staged costume shows, and a full weekend of classes, workshops, seminars and social activities... all revolving around the art and craft of costume.

The place: The DoubleTree Hotel San Jose (www.DoubletreeSanJose.com) (yep you read that right!)

The cost: As of November 1, the adult attending rate is $75. Kids’ rates: 5 and under may attend for free (when accompanying a paid adult) with a Kid in Tow membership, youth memberships (ages 6-12 inclusive) are available for $30. (Age determined as of April 20, 2008.)

We at CC26 think San Jose is just the place for Costume-Con, as the San Francisco Bay Area is home to a large community of professional and hobbyist costumers and their resources. Local costumers vary in interests from theatrical, fantasy and science fiction costume, to historical and living history costumers working in a wide variety of periods. There are many textile-arts groups and specialty fabric shops. Jewelry designers and manufacturers abound. The area is rich in educational and fun locations of interest, such as the Quilt and Technology Museums.

And... We like to party! Socialize. Have fun!

Many SF/ SF readers are no doubt familiar with the League of Evil Geniuses party, hosted by Andy Trembley and Kevin Roche (and a cadre of worthy minions). Perhaps you are a lab rat yourself? In any case, the LoEG parties are all about CC26—so you know you want to make it to the BIG party. <evil LOL>

If you'd like more information (or to volunteer!), visit us at www.CC26.org (click on the ‘Register’ link in the menu bar to register), or write us at: info@cc26.info.

Join us for the first Costume-Con to return to California in fourteen years!

Last Night in Lava Lounge (LA Con IV)

Kevin Roche (CC26 Con Chair), Bruce Mac Dermott, Dana Mac Dermott, Yevette Keller, Anne Davenport, Zelda Gilbert
SiliCon: A Gathering of Friends

Article and Photos By Jean Martin
Editor

This year, SiliCon was held from October 6 through 8, at Bay Area fandom’s usual haunt, the San Jose Doubletree Hotel. Unfortunately, I wasn’t able to attend the entire convention due to rehearsals for the PEERS Dickens Preview Ball and the actual performance and ball itself that Saturday. (My coverage of this ball is in this issue as well.)

Rushing from work on Friday evening, I got to the con in time for the opening event, Meet the Guests. This year, it was short and sweet, with SiliCon owner Dann Lopez introducing this year’s president, Chris Knight. Chris then introduced the guests for the con including Media Guest of Honor (GOH) Robert Meyer Burnett, and Artist GOH Mark Bode. Both Robert and Mark were very entertaining.

After Meet the Guests, which was held in the main ballroom, I hung out with my co-editor Chris Garcia and copy editor David Moyce in the Doubletree’s bar/sushi bar. I ordered dinner—they have really good food at the Doubletree (especially their chocolate chip cookies!)—while my co-horts ordered drinks. There were several SiliCon participants in the bar but so far, attendance seemed light. But this is SiliCon, and last year, there weren’t that many people there on Friday night either.

Which is great because it’s a more relaxing start to a con. You actually get to talk with people. And what I love most about SiliCon is that it feels a lot like a family reunion. Attendance is probably half that of BayCon, but those that are there are the core group of fandom. So I walk around saying hello to almost everyone as I pass by because I know them all.

David called España Sheriff, our regular columnist, to see if she was around. She had just checked into the hotel and he jokingly told her that she was missing our staff meeting. She rushed to join us but I don’t think we ever told her that we really weren’t having a staff meeting. It was more of an opportunity to get together, as we’d never been in the same room at the same time ever! We get along great, and as Chris said in our previous issue, we’re like family, but we hardly ever see each other. So it was great to just chat and catch up and get to know each other better.

While we were there, artist Phil Yeh, whom I met last year and was last year’s Artist GOH, stopped by and dropped off his buddy, current artist GOH Mark Bode. Phil asked us to entertain Mark, who just moved back to the Bay Area after being away for a long time. We heartily agreed. It was quite an honor to converse with Mark who regaled us with stories of growing up and being inspired by his father, legendary cartoonist Vaughn Bode. Mark has succeeded on his own merits, creating popular cartoon characters and working for Heavy Metal magazine, among other things.

Mark then proceeded to draw a voluptuous lady on Chris’s huge Chris for Taff sign—the same woman, I realized, that he drew as part of the cover for the SiliCon program. Chris is running for the chance to become the Trans-Atlantic Fan Fund (TAFF) representative from the Bay Area to be sent to the U.K. next year.

After dinner and drinks, Chris wandered off to who knows where, and David, España and I sauntered toward the party floor on the second floor of the Doubletree. It was still pretty quiet but we did have a great time. We stayed for a bit at Mara’s Bar, the old standby Klingon party room. I discovered a new party room called the CrossTime Cantina put together by Johanna, Radar, et al. Johanna and Radar are fellow Doctor Who fans and costumers. The theme was that it was a meeting place for pilots from all over the sci-fi universe. Most of the guests were wearing some sort of army gear and I was told that Johanna posted an invitation on LiveJournal with the theme for the party. I feel so out of the loop because I’m not active on LiveJournal. But I had fun there anyway and ran into fellow BAERS organizers, Chris and Christy, who were involved with the party as well.

I partied for a bit in my friend Sir Lance’s party room. But as mentioned, there weren’t that many people partying. Almost everyone was in the Browncoat party room, where they were playing the first episode of the third season of Battlestar Galactica on a big projection screen that filled one wall. I said hello to my fellow Browncoats earlier.
but I missed being able to get into the room later on because the room was too full and they weren't letting people in anymore.

I don't know where the time went but I met some new people and just had fantastic conversations with them about life, the universe and everything. España and David were a lot of fun. I'd never partied with them before. We decided not to go to Rocky Horror but wound up at an impromptu screening of producer Robert Meyer Burnett’s DVD extra for Superman Returns in the main ballroom. It was past 2:00 a.m. at that point and I only stayed for a bit as I was tired and still needed to drive home. I think I got home at around 3:00 a.m.!

I didn't get to go back to the con until Sunday. Saturday is the big day as far as cons go. There was the masquerade, which I missed, as well as the evening parties on the party floor. I also missed some panels on costuming I was interested in attending. But for me, Sunday was the big day.

On Sunday, I wore a nice Japanese kimono and got to the con in time for the first of two panels I was going to be part of at 11:30 a.m. in the main ballroom. Last year, it was a thrill to be a panelist with my mug and bio in the program. It made me feel like I’ve arrived in fandom! This year, I was in two panels as well and it felt great to be a part of the con in that capacity again.

This first panel was called “Super Powers - Adaptation from the Non-Super.” The moderator was Matthew Joseph Harrington, and the other panelist was Kathleen Hunt. Matthew is a writer and Kathleen a lawyer. I wasn't sure what I could contribute to the panel but the panel organizer thought it would be a fun one for me. And so it was, in a nerve-wracking way! The topic dealt with what our culture would be like if there were people with superhuman abilities. We discussed the legal issues that would be involved and who would protect non-superhumans from the superhumans. Matthew suggested that society would inevitably turn into a more feudalistic one with superhumans at the top. Kathleen talked about civil liberties that would get violated and how to police and punish superhumans who commit crimes. I put my two cents in as much as I could and held my own. Matthew, who has a genius I.Q., told me toward the end that I had something interesting to say every time he gave me time to say something. That was quite a compliment!

I then rushed to the next event, the Serenity Tea get together at 1:00 p.m. It was held in a small conference room where tea and Doubletree's delicious chocolate chip cookies were served. As I hadn’t had breakfast or lunch at that point, the cookies tided me over until I had lunch at the Doubletree’s café. I enjoyed chatting with my fellow Browncoats, most of whom were wearing their Firefly costumes. It was a lovely afternoon of food, drinks and good company.

Next, I ventured into the dealers’ room, which was bigger than last year’s. I enjoyed browsing through vendors’ booths that sold costumes, books, videos, collectibles and other sci-fi and fantasy-related items. I splurged on a beautiful miniature Victorian red and black hat by Ruby Raven that actually went well with the Japanese kimono I was wearing.

With not much time to spare, I had a quick lunch and walked to the conference room where our SF/SF panel was going to be held. I ran into España on the way there, so we went to the room together. I was a little bit nervous about the panel. This was to be our own panel, our very first one, and I was hoping people would show up. There were about half a dozen people at the first panel I had had that day. Last year, there were fewer than that at each of the panels I did.

I walked past some of the hallway tables. One of them was Black Market Beagles, which sold Firefly-related merchandise. There was a group of Browncoats there and I said hello and asked them to go to the SF/SF panel. They said hello but none of them seemed interested.

However, I was surprised when I got to the room that there were at least half a dozen folks there! Chris, David and staff writer Dr. Noe were there, as well as a lot of other people that have contributed to or been featured in the e-zine at one time.
or another. It was, again, like a family reunion.

I put together a short agenda beforehand, which we stuck to for the most part. My nervousness disappeared as I became the de facto moderator. The panel became more of a fun conversation among the editorial staff, contributors and our guests. Chris was very funny and David brought his laptop to show our latest issue. He also brought some CDs with several issues to give away to the people. We started with doing a brief introduction on how the e-zine got started and how we all got involved in the e-zine. Then we just talked about Bay Area fandom in general.

I was happy to see contributing artist John Barrows who brought some of his artist friends. Merv and Judith from the Legion of Rassilon were also there. I finally got to meet Kevin Standlee. We were taped for SiTV and I would love to get a copy of that tape.

At the end of our panel, all the staff and contributors that were there posed for a group photo. Our first SF/SF panel went really well and I enjoyed it very much. I think the attendees did as well. As Chris said in the last issue, who would have thought a year ago when we took over SF/SF that we would fill a room with people to talk about our e-zine!

 Afterwards, I wandered around and ran into a group of Browncoats who were sitting around a table at the bar with Robert Meyer Burnett. I joined in as it turned out that Dr. Noe was actually interviewing him for SF/SF. Robert, who produced Free Enterprise, a Star Trek-inspired movie, was very engaging and entertaining. Dr. Noe’s article on Robert is in this issue. We all listened to him with rapt attention. Then during a lull in the conversation, he asked me what my story was and I explained to him that I dance and am one of the editors of SF/SF.

 He seemed genuinely interested in all of us as individuals. He noted that most of us got into fandom and met each other at BayCon. Most of us told him also how Firefly has changed our lives. It certainly changed mine and brought me to SF/SF as well as masquerade competitions—and let me meet and make new friends along the way. We stayed there till late and I really didn’t want to leave.

 SiliCon was small but a lot of fun, and not as overwhelming as BayCon with multiple activities going on at the same time. I actually had the chance to just hang out and chat with old friends and new acquaintances. When I finally left at around 9:00 p.m., my only consolation was that there are other conventions coming up and other get-togethers coming up even sooner.

http://www.siliconventions.com
http://www.markbode.com/site/markbode.html
http://www.chrisfortaff.org
http://www.ludovicotechnique.com
Robert Meyer Burnett, the recent media guest of honor at SiliCon, is a fan's fan. The kind of people you long and hope to meet at a con, who not only share a plethora of common interests, but can also hold down a conversation in the real world.

Burnett has been making the convention rounds for quite some time, including such favorites as WonderCon, Comic-Con, and more recently SiliCon. He loves getting out to meet and talk with fans. Probably most noted for the geek-love movie Free Enterprise, Burnett has had quite a life in the movie industry.

He was born May 15, 1967 in Seattle, and uses his middle name in the professional world to avoid being confused with Rob Burnett, the television producer responsible for Late Night with David Letterman. Burnett immediately began a life-long love affair with all forms of media and popular culture. In 1980, after becoming a man at the tender age of 13, he began working in Bellevue, Washington's VIDEOSPACE, the nation's second video store, where he quickly began devouring just about every title ever released on home video, even the films released by Allied Artists.

In 1985 he spent three years at Washington's Evergreen State College before finishing off his collegiate career at USC's School of Cinema/Television.

His first screen credit came in 1990 when he was art department assistant for New Line Cinema's Leatherface: The Texas Chainsaw Massacre III. Then he had a management trainee position in the Warner Brothers feature production department where he worked on the production of such films as Nothing But Trouble, The Rookie, The Bonfire of the Vanities and Free Willy. After Warner Bros., he was briefly a story analyst for Silver Pictures. It only took

The Cover to Ludovico Technique’s Living in Infamy #1
Burnett a year to become fed up with story development, and he went back to production, where he assisted the makeup-effects coordinator for Tony Gardner’s Alterian Studios on Cast a Deadly Spell, Sleepwalkers, Super Mario Brothers, Army of Darkness, and the Swamp Thing television series. Next was his role as staff editor and segment producer for Full Moon Entertainment.

After that life seemed to imitate art as Burnett worked as a freelance Star Trek consultant for Viacom Interactive, then moved on to edit multi-media film displays for Landmark Entertainment and Paramount Parks’ Star Trek: The Experience, which opened in January of 1998 at the Las Vegas Hilton.

Also during this time, he was Critic-at-Large for Larry Flynt’s non-pornographic Sci-Fi Universe Magazine, and a recurring on-air guest commentator on the Sci Fi Channel series, SF Vortex.

It was at Comic-Con where Burnett met Mark Altman, and not long after came Free Enterprise: a great film about two Star Trek fans looking for love (the soundtrack is also worth checking out).

“You think that when you’ve made a movie, you graduate,” Burnett says. “It’s so hard to get a movie made, and when you make one you think, ‘Wow! I’m a film-maker.’ I’ve wanted to make movies my whole life. And then you figure, you get one made, it’s like: ‘I’ve arrived. I’m going to be able to go do anything I want.’ And unfortunately that’s not the case.”

Despite its many accolades and praises, Free Enterprise was not what would be called a smash success. But it did have enough clout to spawn a potential sequel. There is a script for FE 2. (The premise focuses on Mark, Robert, and Leonard Nimoy on a road trip to find Shatner who has disappeared after getting fired from Mel Brooks’ Broadway production of Fiddler on the Moon.) However, Burnett has trepidations about doing it, with the new wave of alternate Trek view that is coming out. Cited as an example is G4’s Trek 2.0 (if he gets Morgan Webb, would it be possible?), which runs little tidbits and funny side gags with the original Trek episodes they show.

“If people are reliving it in a ripping and burning, cutting and pasting remixed culture,” he says, “where you look at everything now getting remixed and rebuilt, I think it (the original message/story) is getting lost. People don’t realize why they’re cutting and mixing and changing things...” around.” (This could be analyzed as people not knowing what they’re getting their hands on, just messing around with some cool old-fashioned things that they can package to the new ADD world.)

“I just wonder if we do Free Enterprise 2, is the (Star Trek) joke played out?”

Burnett himself is very personal and approachable, which he finds easier now that he’s made things that people want to talk about. “Why do you go to conventions if not to sit around and talk to people about common things?”

Although he loves talking sci fi, he also likes to find well-rounded people. (Some of Burnett’s favorite movies are The Godfather, All About Eve, A Clockwork Orange, and the list goes on.) Which is where he feels many people missed the point about what he and Altman were trying to do in Free Enterprise:

“Star Trek was a gateway drug. It led me to reading science fiction novels. And all the great authors.” Which is why the characters in the movie are, themselves, very well rounded, outside of being huge sci-fi geeks.

It’s not all wine and roses in Burnett’s life, mostly due to dealing with the larger studios. There are times where he has considered moving to the Bay Area to get a high-paying tech job or directing cut scenes for video games. The pressure is always there about how he’s going to pay his employees, and other amenities: “I’ve got rent to pay, and I’ve got action figures to buy.”

He has 400 Master Grade Gundam model kits—unbuilt because he’s hiding them from the wife, and is very busy. So, yes, he opens and displays his figures. As should we all.

“Anyone who’s keeping their toys in the box is an idiot,” says Burnett. “Because what they’re doing is saying, one day I’m going to sell these to somebody else and make money. If you think you’re going to make money on your toys you’re in the wrong business: real estate is the money market.” He quotes Lex Luthor from the original Superman movie to prove his point: “People are always going to need land and they’re going to pay through the nose to get it.”

His favorite is six-scale action figures with the nice cloth uniforms. Lots of Japanese action figures and Sideshow toys terrify him with their amount of accuracy.

His idea for MacFarlane’s action figures for Lost: “A button playset where you need to press the button every 108 minutes. If you don’t, it explodes.”

As a producer of DVD extras and so forth, Burnett says it’s not what us geek-types want, because believe it or not, we’re not the majority. The so-called “normal” group doesn’t want the bells and whistles on their DVDs. He feels that what gets put on a DVD stems from polling: you ask what you want but you expect people to give you the answer you’re searching for.

To prove this point, Burnett recalls a story regarding the Disney DVD release of Tron. Burnett pushed for the 88-minute making-of-Tron documentary because he was interested. Disney “could have cared less. They polled mothers of children five and under, ‘Are you excited about the upcoming 20th Anniversary of Tron?’ And these mothers were like: ‘What? What’s Tron?’

“So the studio decided nobody cares about Tron, let’s not spend any money. So, it comes out and it’s their top-selling, old live-action catalogue title of the year.” Disney, needless to say, was shocked and thought their polling information was incorrect. “I haven’t seen anything designed by a poll or a focus group that was worth a crap.”

His love of Tron helped it to become successful, but there are pitfalls to being an uber-fan and being in the biz. Burnett’s double life of making movies and being a fan of everything makes it more difficult to do his job because he sits on both sides of the fence.

“It’s frustrating because I’m as much a consumer of this material, and my opinions are discounted because of that. On the other hand, I know that going in, and it helps me (to pitch ideas).”

He realized this when he was looking at turning Living in Infamy (his comic book which simultaneously became a movie script) into a movie. He knows no one will let him helm the $40-$50 million picture as director, which is why he’s producing it, so that he has some control, sounds professional, and won’t seem like a geeky fan.

His geeky consumerism came to light with DC Direct because of all the variations of their figures; he got into a conversation with a friend at the company regarding the various story-line figures they’re making. Burnett doesn’t like the fact that they look like their comic inspiration:

“I liked it more when all the figures looked realistic. Now with the various styles you can’t have your normal Superman sitting next to the Batman from The Dark Knight Returns. They’re the wrong scale. What I want to be able to do is put every single DC figure on the same plane and look like they exist in the same world.”

His friend asked Burnett if he was out of his mind. “No, I want to have the Legion of Superheroes be able to interact with the Justice League. I want them to look like the same scale, like they exist in the real world.” He was dismissed as just a geeky fanboy. This could be good and bad.

Burnett laments the severe lack of good movies being made today, especially the lack of worthwhile sci-fi movies. “If you go back and look at the early 70s, even things that were goofy like Omega Man, or The Last Days of Man on Earth, it was interesting stuff getting made. Even the original Rollerball is a fascinating movie about corporate culture and the corporate wars. Now all science fiction movies are synonymous with action. I want to see more movies like Gattica.”

Part of the reason these films may be made only as blockbusters is Hollywood knows the fans will see them. It’s the mother of three that somehow has to be convinced to spend $100 on a family outing to go see these movies.
According to Burnett, if anything has proved that sci fi fans don’t really matter to Hollywood it is that the fans will go to anything, and the Internet buzz means nothing. “The Internet proved that there are not enough fans to make something successful. Snakes on a Plane is the case in point.”

Two dream projects that he would love to make films of are Dan Simmon’s Hyperion, which he describes as “Canterbury Tales in Space,” and The Harvest by Robert Charles Wilson.

Burnett gets just as riled up about what’s good and not on TV. He finds issues with Lost and 24. In fact, he likes to watch them on TiVo so he can get all the pertinent information about the shows without the 90% filler.

“Lost is the most maddening… Lost is basically a 2-hour movie that they’re stretching out into three frickin’ years. Very few things happen. It barely moves along… Nobody wants to wait around that long to find out what’s going on. I watch because I’m intrigued about what’s going on, but it’s maddening.

“Those characters aren’t doing enough. They don’t even interact. You watch the flashback stories that aren’t about the characters on the show interacting with one another. It’s one or two minutes of really interesting stuff and then all this filler.”

But he doesn’t feel all modern shows are horrible. Burnett feels the most underrated show on TV today is Veronica Mars. For a great story (beginning, middle and end), he loved the X-Files…until the movie. Problems: Conspirators dealing with aliens since WWII, the eugenics thing, the black oil that was never explained, now causes alien gestation, what’s with the space ship that has created more problems. The conspirators apparently knew nothing about what was going on inside the alien ship. So, how did Gillian Anderson’s Scully get there? How did they know Mulder had rescued her? And the list goes on.

It’s not just these popular TV shows that get Burnett riled up. However, his extreme dislike for a few more recent blockbusters, including the Star Wars prequels and the sequels to the Matrix, may be better left for another time—or, next time you see him at a con, you can ask him yourself.

For more information on Robert Meyer Burnett, visit his web site at: http://ludovicotechnique.com/ludovicohome.html
Halloween Costuming Around the Bay

Article and Photos By Jean Martin
Editor

Halloween, with its pagan roots, has now become mainstream. But it is still a fun holiday that encourages everyone to let their hair down. So costuming is naturally a part of enjoying Halloween. You’d think that with all the costuming opportunities I have on an ongoing basis that Halloween would be old hat to me. However, I still look forward to it because it is the biggest and best costuming event of the year! And everyone, costumers and regular folk alike, gets into the spirit of things.

Speaking of spirits, Halloween also ties in with the paranormal and otherworldly interests. So sci-fi and fantasy go well with it. And history too, since Halloween has been celebrated in lots of cultures around the world for millennia. Though the holiday began when people believed that spirits from the non-material world come into ours for one night, the point is now lost to most, but still appears in the form of horror movies, Halloween décor, and scary costumes of every kind.

This year, it seems like with all the new people I know in fandom, Halloween has mushroomed from a one-day event to a three-week event! The festivities for me began with the Black Fleet Star Pirates’ Guild party in the city two Saturdays before Halloween. It was hosted by one of its members, Debbie. I’m also a member of Black Fleet and enjoyed hanging out with the group. Debbie’s house is an old Victorian and she decorated each room elaborately. The music was 80s as well as some Middle Eastern music, as some BF-SPG members are belly dance performers as well. One lady, Ozlum, actually performed. She was amazingly fun to watch as Kel and Corli

Joan and Richard
she sensuously sashayed around the living room.

The night had its scary moments as well when some of us were lounging in the front parlor and several people recounted their encounters with ghosts and other spectral phenomena. And apropos for the occasion, I was told that Debbie’s sewing room in the basement has a ghost. So our Imperious Leader, Obi-Juan, showed me the room and told me that the ghost is quite harmless and actually quite nice.

I wore a Batgirl costume I bought at a Halloween store. But it looked good and didn’t look cheap, and most people liked it. Lots of people wore their own creations or custom-made costumes. BF-SPG is a costuming group so the level of costuming was quite high.

On the Saturday before Halloween, I went to three parties in one evening—all in San Jose, fortunately. The first one was at the home of one of my friends whom I do masquerade competitions with. It was nice to see most of the folks I do masquerades with. Everyone was in costume, of course. And it was nice to see that we were all dressed up in real outfits as opposed to store-bought costumes. Several were dressed up as pirates and characters from Firefly. I was dressed as Boomer from Battlestar Galactica for the evening.

After that first party, which was more of a mellow get-together of friends, I went to a bigger party that was still quite relaxed, almost elegant, but with more people. It was at the home of a Browncoat couple I recently became acquainted with, Joan and Richard. Joan decorated each and every room with Department 56 Halloween décor. I was so impressed with the level of detail with which she decorated her beautiful townhouse! There were trees with ornaments, bat sconces, candles, tabletop villages, skeletons at the dining room table, serving dishes, candelabras, wreaths,
Pirate who lost a round of poker to a skeleton crowd knick knacks, etc. Even the bathroom and staircase were decorated! It was a lovely party and I was quite happy to run into a lot of Browncoats whom I knew. Several of them were wearing Harry Potter outfits though. I don’t think I saw anyone wearing a Firefly costume at the party! They liked my Boomer outfit as most of them are also now BSG fans.

The last party was not with any of my sci fi, dance or costuming friends and it was a totally different kind of Halloween party than the first two. I’m glad I went to this last, as this one would have tired me out right away! There was loud Heavy Metal music coming out of the stereo and the guests were more spirited, if you know what I mean. The costumes were store-bought but more wild and crazy. I saw lots of afros, boas and short skirts. I did run into someone dressed as a Crazy 88 and he was glad that I recognized his costume. The party was a lot of fun and reminded me of my old Heavy Metal partying days.

On Halloween night itself, I went to the Foster City safe streets again with my family. As I already covered this last year, I’m not going to repeat myself. But I highly recommend it for those who enjoy the actual act of Trick-or-Treating with children. which is a big tradition here in the U.S. that I didn’t get to experience when I was a kid. The houses in that one entire neighborhood that’s blocked off for the evening are very nicely decorated—and there’s lots of candy being given away too! What a full experience of Halloween I’ve had this year. Now on to Thanksgiving and Christmas!
Once again, the lights were on late into the evening of October 31 on Castro Street, and despite the heavy police presence, a Halloween spirit prevailed.

Riding the Metro was a treat, with the cars full of antennae and winged creatures and super-heroes of all varieties, all heading towards Castro Street. The Incredibles and a Rosie the Riveter, along with a dinosaur and a turtle, fought to get into the cars before the Metro doors slid closed. After that it was easy to find your way by just following the flow of the costumed crowd. Once there, the famous street was jam-packed with costumed people dancing to the beat of the provided music and happily snapping photos and exclaiming over each other’s costumes.

A guy dressed as a bathroom shower ran around the street capturing people in his shower curtain, a group of people-sized Fandango bag puppets posed often for photos, Castro Street residents threw candy down to the crowd from the apartments above. A party atmosphere of hilarity and high spirits permeated the crowd. The signature Castro Street men-dressed-as-women made appearances as glam queens and cheerleaders with beards.

One red-haired, costumed participant, Stannie Holt, carefully balancing a tray of cookies (an accessory to her costume character, Bree from the TV show Desperate Housewives), had these remarks on the reported murder and mayhem that later appeared in the evening.

Super Bunny and Beaker

Man in the Shower
news: “I knew something was going on when we heard all those sirens about 10:45, but I had no idea it was so bad! On the other hand, I was getting a bad vibe from the crowd.... Anyway, we got away safely, and a fine time was had by all.”

Another participant, San Francisco resident Alan Wei, had this to say: “I had a grand time at the (Castro) street party. My head was still spinning once I lay down (to sleep). Sad to hear what happened around us.”

At the close of the evening just about around 11:30, the SF cops began chanting, “Go home...Go home...”, the street cleaners showed up, clearing the streets of bottles and other debris, and the crowd dispersed at the end of another historic Halloween evening in the Castro.
Ushering in the Dickens Fair Season

Article and Photos By Jean Martin

Editor

On October 7, the Period Events and Entertainments Re-Creation Society (PEERS), a nonprofit organization dedicated to historical dance, theatre and the performing arts, held its annual Dickens Ball. This event ushers in the season of the Dickens Fair, which starts the day after Thanksgiving and goes to the day before Christmas Eve.

I got to bed around 4:00 a.m. that morning from SiliCon (see article in this same issue). So I took it easy and decided to just skip SiliCon the entire Saturday. I woke up late, watched some of season one of BSG, and drove to the San Mateo Masonic Hall for rehearsals at around 5 p.m.

There always is a Victorian Music Hall at the Dickens-themed events. The next one after the Fair will be the Dickens Reunion ball in January. I'm part of the Peerless Beauties chorus girl group and our shows, during the intermissions, are a lot of fun. Bawdy and raucous, but funny and sweet at the same time.

For the ball itself, I wore a Victorian ensemble I bought at the Dickens Fair a couple of years ago. The top is a violet off-the-shoulder bodice and the bottom a black Can Can skirt. For the performance, I had on Victorian tasteful and colorful undergarments. For this ball, we just did one 30-minute set. It included a song I really like entitled The Boy I Love, which involves us pointing out into the audience for the boys we love (well, in theory anyway), and the guys in the audience waving their handkerchiefs at us. It’s a flirty and delightful tune that I enjoy singing.

We also learned two new songs for the evening: Artificial Flowers, a sad story about a young street girl who sells artificial flowers to rich women, and The Wassail Song, which is a very Christmasy song. Artistic director and lead singer Cathleen Meyers changed the lyrics to some of the verses to say a little something about the members of the cast. The line she sang for me was to “Jean with her fans,” as I waved my two Chinese fans that I used as props for a photo shoot I did for a promotional piece for a future ball. The ball is “The Red Carpet Ball” in April 2007. I portrayed Anna May Wong, the first Asian Hollywood film star, who had her heyday in the 1930s. PEERS produced a calendar from these photos, in which six other Peerless Beauties other than myself posed as Old Hollywood film stars. Our finale was our usual Can Can number where we danced the Can Can off the stage to the song Don’t Have Any More Mrs. More. Performing with the Peerless Music Hall is a lot of fun. The audience seemed to enjoy our show as well. And it gives the musicians (this evening it was Bangers and Mash) a well-deserved break.

As far as the actual dancing, there were the usual waltzes, polkas, mazurkas, schottisches, the Grand March and the popular Congress of Vienna. I got to dance the latter with someone I met at the Browncoat Ball. It’s always great that I meet people everywhere and run into them at other places. There were also set dances such as Sir Roger de Coverley and Strip the Willow.

Most people were wearing Victorian attire, but I was wondering what Doctor Who was doing there. Someone was dressed in a Peter Davison Doctor Who outfit. Perhaps the Doctor was in Victorian England at some point? Christopher Eccleston did have one episode in Victorian England where he got to meet Charles Dickens. It would have been awesome if someone had come as the Christopher Eccleston Doctor Who. And I could have been Rose. One of these days, I’m going to go to an event in a Rose costume. I’m working on it!

I left before midnight to go to Heidi’s Pies with some friends, who I also had dinner with after rehearsals. I love hanging out with friends before and after balls. I toyed with the idea of going to SiliCon for the nighttime parties but thought that I wouldn’t get there in time, so I just drove home, content with the fact that I was having a full weekend of dancing, costuming and science fiction.

For more information on future PEERS events, go to:
www.peers.org
For the PEERS 2007 Hollywood Pre-Code Photographs Calendar and various other merchandise, go to:
http://www.cafepress.com/peers
For more information on the Dickens Fair, go to:
http://www.dickensfair.com/
Article and Photos By Jean Martin
Editor
I flew down to L.A. for the weekend to attend the L.A. Decompression last October 14. Since I missed Burning Man, as well as the San Francisco Decompression on October 8, I was very interested in checking it out. (And I couldn’t turn down a free flight!)
L.A. Decompression was held in downtown L.A. Several street blocks were blocked off and as soon as I walked in... through the entrance, I knew I was going to have a good time. The girl that gave me a wristband, with the Burning Man logo on it, said, “Welcome home” with a cheerful and welcoming smile. I only realized at that point that this was an extension of Burning Man and not just any ordinary block party.

I was immediately struck by how relaxed and colorful the place was. You wouldn’t have thought you were in the middle of one of the most famous urban jungles of them all. I really felt like I was at Burning Man. There was one long street that stretched to my left and right. There were big art installations right at the intersection. And further down on each side, I could see various theme camps set up. There were even art cars!

There was a dance floor across the entrance that was playing techno music. Not my cup of tea, but the DJ was ensconced in a grass hut and surrounded by real tropical trees. I wasn’t in the mood to dance yet so my group decided to wander around a bit first.

The first art I saw was the big dragon we featured in our Burning Man coverage a few issues ago. I missed seeing that at Burning Man so it was great to see it in L.A. At night, it was lit from within and had an orange glow. What I didn’t know was that it had a partner, a sea horse which glowed neon blue, that was just as awesome. I got to see that there as well.

Further down to the right was a big stage with a ringmaster as an emcee. On that stage were fashion shows and other interesting performances. There were other dance stages as well. One played a new form of techno, called break-beat, which I actually enjoyed as it didn’t sound too repetitive. There was a camp with a pole and several talented pole dancers in skimpy outfits performed amazing feats of dancing on it.

One of my favorites was the AlterVision: Black Light Lounge. You walked in with 3-D glasses and all these neon artworks were jumping out of the walls at you.
Quite spectacular.

There were also camps set up that were giving away free food. One was giving away pancakes, another waffles, and one theme camp, that also had Indian chanting, gave away kitcheree, a delicious warm rice and lentil dish.

As night went on, things became even more surreal. It really didn’t feel like I was in L.A. at all. With hardly any lights, I could be forgiven for mistakenly believing I was actually at the Playa. I should have brought my head lamp.

At the end of the right wing of the street was another huge stage. On this stage were performances by fire dancers. I didn’t expect any of this at all! The performances were quite professional and they reminded me of the performances during the night of the Burn last year before the Man was actually burned. I spent the rest of the evening watching these performances by several groups. Each had their own theme, costuming, music, colors and fire paraphernalia. Some had regular poi, one guy had a flaming whip, and another had a mace. Several women had fans or hula hoops of flame. And some had staffs on fire that they fought each other with. There were also several fire blowers. And while they did all this, they were all dancing in time to music! Very impressive.
Black Light Lounge
Well, even the non-performers were quite a treat for the eyes. Everyone, male and female, looked so gorgeous, fit, tanned, well-coiffed and smiling. Lots of people were in movie-quality theatrical costumes, hair and makeup. I guess this is Hollywoodland after all. But everyone was also so nice and friendly. People would just come up to me and talk. They were more down-to-earth than they looked.

On the left extension of the street were more dance stages. There were also two art cars that were based on ships. One was a Viking ship with a dragon head and another was modern, like a big cruise ship. There was also a big screen where they were showing footage from this year’s Burning Man. So I got to see the Man burn, which was quite a magnificent sight with lots more fireworks than last year.

The festivities ended at midnight but there was a club right next door, which we stayed at until closing time. I didn’t enjoy the club as much as it was too hot and loud. I danced there for a little while but it just reminded me of being in a crowded city when I was just enjoying the fresh air, relaxing spaciousness and beautiful surroundings outside. The difference was quite jarring.

I certainly enjoyed L.A. Decompression a whole lot. And between that and my Fourth of July Playa adventure, I got my fill of Burning Man this year, so I don’t feel too bad about missing the real deal. In fact, I actually preferred L.A. Decompression because it was like Burning Man but smaller and less overwhelming. I didn’t have to deal with the sandy Playa floor, stale food, dry air, extreme heat and cold, dust storms, and 24-hour techno music coming from all sides. But I definitely will be going to Burning Man again next year. There is still something special about living in a fantasy city and artistic community for a week where you can just exist and be, and do whatever you want with several thousands of people doing the same thing.
BASFA Minutes: meeting 848

October 23, 2006

Trey Haddad, President
Chris Garcia, Vice-President
Dave Gallaher, Treasurer
Galen Tripp, Sergeant at Arms
Barbara Johnson-Haddad, Secretary

Began 8:00.

18 people attended.

Secretary’s report: the minutes of meeting 847 were accepted as ‘reading glasses won’t help.’

There was no Treasurer or treasurer’s report.

VP report: there’s a new ‘Drink Tank’ on efanzines.com, there’ll be a new SF/SF Tuesday or Wednesday & the next ‘Drink Tank’ will be about computers.

The President had nothing to report.

The Party Committee will order BASFA badge ribbons.

The AhwaneeCon committee reported an LJ community has been created, a logo has been crafted & a mascot is being designed.

It was moved to refer to Carole Parker as ‘bionic woman’ for the duration of the meeting.

Announcements
[Bill Laubenheimer] announced that Pacific NW fandom is trying to organize a filk convention for Jan 2008.
[evil] Kevin announced Andy’s present arrived & CostumeCon 26 has a kids membership.
Dave C announced that there’s a new Cargo Cult out & that SFState is holding a battle of left and right.
Andy announced that Nov 5th Alameda Hangar One will have an open house, featuring scary drinks & that Baycon has a 3 year deal with the Santa Clara Hyatt & Convention Center starting in 2008.
Chris announced ‘Chris for TAFF’ and that he is organizing the LosCon TAFF auction.

Carole announced that the stitches have been removed and she’ll show the scar if asked.
Frank announced that Jane Wyatt had died.
Reviews:
Joni reviewed Mark Janson’s ‘Apers’ as it addressed animal rights topics and guarantees teens will read it, the prose is stilted and the cover is iffy at best.
Dave C reviewed ‘The Prestige’ as magicians feuding in Edwardian England; worth full price.
Dave G reported there’s a big tent over Howard Street for Oracle World.
Chris reviewed ‘100 years of Horror Films’ as worth sitting through, the 2nd season of Harvey Birdman Attorney at Law as brilliant, that Sealab 2021 was equally funny & he’s not quite sure he gets ‘Lost’; there were many follow-ons.
Carole reviewed bicycle accidents with teenagers as it sucks, that Stanford Hospital was unimpressive and Warren King is an [excellent] sports surgeon. Andy said ‘he has seen the future at the San Mateo Marriott’ and says Baycon will be ‘cozy,’ that Westercon will probably be OK & he reviewed the 1st episode of ‘Torchwood’ as worth breaking the law for, not Dr. Who, not CSI Cardiff, nicely shot, pretty good writing. [evil] Kevin reviewed [tall] Kevin’s lessons in parliamentary procedures were well worth it. An unnamed person reviewed Bujold’s newest novel as quite good.

We auctioned off stuff - books for $0.25, $3.00, $0.25 & $1.00; a stamp for $2.00 & birthday auctioned Chris off for $25.00. We adjourned at 9:27 pm. And the rumor of the week was: ‘Evil Kevin will lead us to distilled water.’

---

BASFA Minutes: meeting 849

October 30, 2006

Trey Haddad, President
Chris Garcia, Vice-President
Dave Gallaher, Treasurer
Galen Tripp, Sergeant at Arms
Barbara Johnson-Haddad, Secretary

Began 8:10.

20 people attended.

Big Announcement: next week BASFA will meet at the Newark Round Table at Thornton Ave and Cedar.

Secretary’s report: the minutes of meeting 848 were accepted as ‘full of veiled references.’ Treasurer’s report: we took in $5.12 in the regular jar & $30.00 in the party jar.

VP report: ‘Chris for TAFF’ & there’s a new ‘Drink Tank’ on efanzines.com, there’ll be a new SF/SF soon.

The President had nothing fannish to report.

The AhwaneeCon committee reported that Robert Hole has done the logo, registration forms have been printed & a progress report is being assembled.

Announcements
Dave C announced that there’s a convention coming up at the Embassy Suites in South SF, BasCon, a slash fiction convention.

Andy announced a death in the BayCon extended family & that Con-X-treme has moved from March to July 27-29.

Lynn announced that she will be performing at Java on Ocean in SF at 7 pm & that Warren now works at the Titanic exhibit.

Chris announced that he wants a review of Yaoi-con [from someone who attended it].

[evil] Kevin announced that CostumeCon’s rates go up on Wednesday.

Art announced that the annual DevNul tournament begins tomorrow at midnight.

Reviews:
Howeird reviewed community theatre - the Mission City Center for the Performing Arts in Santa Clara’s showing of ‘Gilligan’s Island, the Musical’ as much, MUCH better than it sounds and every part was nailed solid, well worth full price and attending twice.

Chris said he lost lots of money at Tahoe and reviewed the worst haunted house ever made as not worth the $5.00 donation & he reviewed DVDs - ‘Velvet Vampire’ as not as bad as it could have been, with beautiful cinematography and the storyline was crap, worth $3.86 & reviewed ‘Homo Promo’ as really entertaining and worth adding to your Netflix queue - but see it with a computer nearby so you can do searches for obscure actors.

Cheryl reviewed England as wet and she’s glad to be back & reviewed darkest Somerset as the newspapers there have progressed to moveable type & there’s an article about Kim Newman that she passed around & while England doesn’t do much with Hallowe’en there IS a fun costume event to celebrate - Guy Fawkes Day - ‘costumes and explosives, who can ask for anything more?’ & she had photos from that too; Andy follow-on’d that he’d seen Kim Newman on TV during 100 Years of Horror.

Bob reviewed books, Peter Watts ‘Blindsight’ as interesting science & Charlie Stross’s ‘Glasshouse’ as a terrific use of teleportation.

Dave C reviewed the great debate [radio DJs debating] as free & worth full price & warns that the 75th anniversary edition of ‘Dracula’ has had a new musical score attached to it.

Andy reviewed episodes 2 & 3 of ‘Torchwood’ as it’s getting weirder - not for kids - still worth breaking the law for.

Dave G reviewed skin cancer surgery as ‘wear sunscreen.’

Then we established a party jar.

And Dave C reviewed ‘Man of the Year’ as fun, cute - not really deep - & without a lot of thought & worth matinee & reviewed ‘Well of Lost Plots’ by Fforde as a bit of a place-holder, worth paperback.

We auctioned off stuff: books for $0.25, $5.00, $2.00, $3.00, $2.50, $3.50, $5.50, $4.50, & birthday auctioned Barbara off for $12.00 to Trey.

We adjourned at 9:15 pm.

And the rumor of the week was ‘that Cheryl Morgan will win the Hugo for fan artist.’
Bay Area Fannish Calendar

While some effort (OK, OK, damn little effort) is made to verify event listings, please check before attending, as events are sometimes cancelled or times and locations changed.

New listings are in red. Ongoing events are toward the back.

Wednesday, November 8
Transit of Mercury
Chabot Space Science Center 10000 Skyline Blvd.
Oakland
11 a.m.-4 p.m.
Free with museum admission
www.chabotspace.org
View this relatively rare journey by Mercury across the face of the Sun, as viewed from Earth (it won’t happen again for another 10 years). Visitors can see the progress on the Center’s TV monitors and participate in hands-on activities.

Wednesday, November 8
YLEM Forum: “How Techies Have Fun”
RX Gallery and Bar
132 Eddy Street
San Francisco
8 p.m.
$10 donation
A show-and-tell evening presented by YLEM:

Artists Using Science and Technology, featuring moving light sculptures, a digital lava lamp, glowing necklaces, and more.

Wednesday, November 8
The Smart Vehicle
SAP Labs
Building D, 3410 Hillview Avenue
Palo Alto
6-9 p.m.
$40 at the door
650-386-5015
A panel of experts from DaimlerChrysler, Bosch, SAP and others discuss current and future uses of electronics and software in cars.

Thursday, November 9
Thrillville: Shatfest
Parkway Speakeasy Theater
1834 Park Blvd.
Oakland
9:15 p.m.
$6
Thrillville’s tribute to William Shatner, including a screening of Impulse (1974).

Thursday, November 9
Purple Rain: When Ukes Cry
The Rickshaw Stop
155 Fell Street
San Francisco
9 p.m.
$10
www.ukeapocalypse.com
From the creators of Ukey Stardust and the Spiders from Mars comes something far more ridiculous: Prince’s 80s masterpiece, in its entirety, on ukulele. (Is this Fannish? Ukey Stardust made the list because it was at the Chabot Space Center, and Bowie was kinda sci-fi-ish in his Ziggy Stardust-Diamond Dogs period, plus people were encouraged to show up in Bowie-glam attire, so there was the costuming angle. Now we seem to be on a slippery slope. One lined with ukulele players.)

Thursday-Saturday, November 9-11
Shocktoberfest
The Hypnodrome
575 10th Street
San Francisco
Thursdays-Saturdays 8 p.m.
$20-$60
www.hypnodrome.com
The Thrillpeddlers wrap up their seventh annual Halloween season revue, with three tales of terror and taboo inspired by the notorious Theatre du Grand Guignol.

Thursday-Sunday, November 9-12
Bat Boy: The Musical
School of the Arts Theatre
Musical comedy explores what happens when some teenagers in a small town in West Virginia discover a half-bat, half-human creature.

Friday, November 10

Late Night Picture Show:

The Toxic Avenger (1985)

Clay Theatre
2261 Fillmore
San Francisco
Midnight
$9.75
www.landmarkafterdark.com

Friday and Saturday, November 10-11

Midnight Special:

A Clockwork Orange (1971)

Shattuck Cinemas
2230 Shattuck Ave.
Berkeley
3 p.m.
Free
www.borderlands-books.com

November 10-18

The Curse of the Goddamned Ship

Dark Room Theatre
2263 Mission Street
San Francisco
Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m.
$10 www.darkroomsf.com/goddamned/

An evening of absurd theater, dark comedy and music of the sea aboard a ship of damned fools.

Saturday, November 11

Mob of Waldos

Ferry Building
San Francisco
Noon
Free
waldo.castlepeakstudios.com

Those interested in participating in a re-creation of the most difficult “Where’s Waldo” puzzle ever are encouraged to come out to the square across from the San Francisco Ferry Building at noon in a red-and-white-striped shirt and blue pants.

Saturday, November 11

Author: Ellen Klages

Borderlands Books
866 Valencia Street
San Francisco
3 p.m.
Free
www.borderlands-books.com

Saturday, November 11

For Crying Out Loud:

A Reading by Lemony Snicket

Book Passage
51 Tamal Vista Blvd.
Corte Madera
11 a.m.
415-927-0960

With music by The Gothic Archies featuring Lemony Snicket on percussion. Customers will receive a ticket with purchase of a copy of The End ($12.99), the final installment in the Series of Unfortunate Events books.

Saturday and Sunday, November 11-12

Warp 11: “A 23rd Century Thanksgiving”

Old Ironsides
1901 10th Street
Sacramento
9 pm

Sacramento’s Star Trek-themed rock band performs such hits as “She Make It So” and “Boldly Go Down on Me.”

Saturday, November 11

Other Magazine Presents Writers with Drinks

The Make-Out Room
3225 22nd Street
San Francisco
7:30 p.m.
$3-$5 sliding scale

Writers: K.E. Silva, Madeleine Robins, Katie Hafner and Spring Opara.

Saturday and Sunday, November 11-12

Carnival of Stars
Centennial Hall
22292 Foothill Blvd.
Hayward
10 a.m.-9 p.m.
$12
www.carnivalofstars.com
A belly dance and comic book festival with dance performances, cartoon artists, gift shopping, costume contest.

November 11-December 10
Edward Scissorhands
Orpheum Theatre
1192 Market Street
San Francisco
$35-$90
www.bestofbroadway-sf.com
Choreographer Matthew Bourne’s dance adaptation of the 1990 Tim Burton movie.

Sunday, November 12
Author: Deborah Grabien
Borderlands Books
866 Valencia Street
San Francisco
1 p.m.
Free
www.borderlands-books.com

Sunday, November 12
Authors: Tim Pratt and Heather Shaw
Borderlands Books
866 Valencia Street
San Francisco
3 p.m.
Free
www.borderlands-books.com

Sunday, November 12
Ask a Scientist:
Why Do We Study Monkeys?
The Canvas Gallery
1200 9th Avenue
San Francisco
7 p.m.
Free
With Prof. Alexander “Sandy” Harcourt, UC Davis Dept. of Anthropology; presented in association with the Leakey Foundation.

Sunday, November 12
For Crying Out Loud:
A Reading by Lemony Snicket
First Congregational Church
2345 Channing Way
Berkeley
3 p.m.
$3
510-559-9500
With music by The Gothic Archies featuring Lemony Snicket on percussion. Presented by Cody’s Books; tickets for sale at Cody’s stores.

Sunday, November 12
Blind Guardian
The Fillmore
1805 Geary Boulevard
San Francisco
German progressive rock band tours “A Twist in the Myth,” their new album. “They previously did an entire album, ‘Nightside on Middle Earth’ based on Tolkien’s Silmarillion and a song called ‘The Lord of the Rings’ is on an earlier album. Definitely a band heavily influenced by fantasy themes.” – Jack Avery.

Friday, November 17
Bioethics and Beyond: Nature vs. Nanotechnology Mechanics’ Institute
57 Post Street
San Francisco
Noon $12
www.milibrary.org/events.html
Mark Routhier in conversation with Dr. Alan Goldstein; part of the Institute’s “Science Salon” series.

Friday and Saturday, November 17-18
Late Night Picture Show:
Godzilla, Mothra and King Ghidorah Giant Monsters All-Out Attack (2001)
Clay Theatre
2261 Fillmore
San Francisco
Midnight
$9.75
www.landmarkafterdark.com

Saturday, November 18
Borderlands Ninth Anniversary Sale
Borderlands Books
866 Valencia Street
San Francisco
Noon-8 p.m.
www.borderlands-books.com

Saturday, November 18
Pas D'Armes
Society for Creative Anachronism Event Elk Glen
Golden Gate Park
San Francisco
Opening ceremonies 11 a.m.
Site fee $5 ($10 family), repast $10, non-members +$3 (The Hospitallers of St. Bahb the Martyr will subsidize the non-members fee).
www.cloondara.org

Friday and Saturday, November 24-25
Late Night Picture Show: Brazil (1985)
Clay Theatre
2261 Fillmore
San Francisco
Midnight
$9.75
www.landmarkafterdark.com

Friday-Sunday, November 24-26
J-Rock Connection
Santa Clara Marriott
2700 Mission College Blvd.
Santa Clara
www.j-rock.info
Weekend-long celebration of J-rock, cosplay, and Japanese street fashion; live acts include Kama Shenjing, Hagakure, Serafilia, and Mars.

November 24-December 23
Dickens Christmas Fair Exhibition Hall
The Cow Palace
Daly City
11 a.m.-7 p.m.
$20
www.dickensfair.com
An appallingly exciting experience of no ordinary cleverness. Dickens’ London opens for business the Friday after Thanksgiving and continues weekends through Dec. 23 with gifts, food, costumes, dance parties, etc. (Free admission during opening weekend for “timeplayers” who have submitted their Victorian personae in advance and arrive in period costume — see website for details.)

Saturday, November 25
Toys for Tots Toy Drive Toys R Us
1660 Commercial Way
Santa Cruz
11 a.m.-4 p.m.
831-479-4296
Costumed fans turn out in force for a good cause; sponsored by the Golden Gate Garrison-501st Stormtrooper Legion.

Saturday, November 25
Kaiju! Giant Monsters Attack!
ATA Gallery
992 Valencia Street
San Francisco
8:30 p.m.
$5
Other Cinema presents Japanese monster film enthusiasts Patrick Macias and David Cox discussing and sharing clips of Godzilla, Mothra, Gamera, Rodan, and the rest.

Monday, November 27
The Face of Another (1966)
Castro Theatre

429 Castro Street
San Francisco
7 and 9:30 p.m.
$9
www.thecastrotheatre.com
Directed by Hiroshi Teshigahara, in Japanese with English subtitles.

Tuesday, November 28
American Scary (2006)
Parkway Speakeasy Theater
1834 Park Blvd.
Oakland
9:15 p.m.
$5
www.americanscary.com
Local premiere of a new documentary film about television horror hosts, including local legends Bob Wilkins, John Stanley and Mr. Lobo; with filmmaker Sandy Clark and other guests.

Saturday, December 2
Super Toy, Comic Book, Record and Collectible Show
Santa Clara County Fairgrounds
344 Tully Road
San Jose
$5 (early bird admission $15)
www.timetunneltoys.com/toyshow.html

Saturday, December 2
Jingles Feast
SCA Event
Unitarian Universalist Church
505 East Charleston Road
Palo Alto

www.thecastrotheatre.com
Directed by Hiroshi Teshigahara, in Japanese with English subtitles.

www.americanscary.com
Local premiere of a new documentary film about television horror hosts, including local legends Bob Wilkins, John Stanley and Mr. Lobo; with filmmaker Sandy Clark and other guests.

www.timetunneltoys.com/toyshow.html

44
Annual Yule revels include a feast, bell ringing competition, and silent auction.

Saturday, December 2
Silly Symphonies
Castro Theatre
429 Castro Street
San Francisco
1:30 p.m.
$13
www.silentfilm.org
Rare screening of eight of Walt Disney’s pioneering short animated features from 1929-35, followed by a panel discussion led by film historian Russell Merritt.

Monday, December 4
Ask a Scientist: E=mc²
The Canvas Gallery
1200 9th Avenue
San Francisco
7 p.m.
Free
UC Berkeley Physics Prof Hitoshi Murayama talks about the meaning of the world’s most famous equation.

Thursday, December 7
Thrillville: The Giant Claw (1957)
Parkway Speakeasy Theater
1834 Park Blvd.
Oakland
9:15 p.m.
$7
Hosted by Speakeasy Theaters programmer and local lounge lizard Will “the Thrill” Viharo and his lovely wife and stage assistant, Monica, Tiki Goddess. With the Twilight Vixen Revue live on stage.

Saturday, December 9
Other Magazine Presents
Writers with Drinks
The Make-Out Room
3225 22nd Street
San Francisco
7:30 p.m.
$3-$5 sliding scale
With writers Lolly Winston, Stephen Elliott, Indigo Moor, Laura Moriarty, and Kevin Avery.

Sunday, December 10
Sac-Con
Scottish Rite Center
6151 H Street
Sacramento
10 a.m.-5 p.m.
$6
www.sacanime.com
Comic, toy and anime show, usually has an anime costume contest. Guests include ST: TNG’s Denise Crosby (Tasha Yar) and Tony Todd (Kurn).

Tuesday, December 19
Ask a Scientist’s Holiday Trivia Party
The Bazaar Café
5927 California Street
San Francisco
7 p.m.
Free
A rollicking night of science trivia, hosted by the Exploratorium’s Robin Marks.

Saturday, December 23
The Fellowship of the Ring (2001)
The Two Towers (2002)
The Return of the King (2003)
Castro Theatre
429 Castro Street
San Francisco
1:30-11:30 p.m.
$10
The entire Lord of the Rings cycle on the Castro’s big screen—all for ten bucks.

Friday-Sunday, January 5-7
Fangoria’s Weekend of Horrors
DoubleTree Hotel
2050 Gateway Place
San Jose
$49-$169, single-day tickets available
www.creationent.com
A Creation Convention. Costume contest, indy film room, dealer’s room; guests include George Romero (Night of the Living Dead, Dawn of the Dead).

Saturday, January 6
Victorian 12th Night Ball
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by December 20), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
A.k.a. The Dickens Fair Reunion Ball. Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.

Sunday, January 7
Bad Movie Night:
Snakes on a Plane (2006)
The Dark Room Theatre
2263 Mission Street
San Francisco
8 p.m.
$5
www.darkroomsf.com
With your hosts Sherilyn Connelly, Mikl Em, Geekboy and Jim Fourniadis.

Saturday-Sunday, January 13-14
Sac-Anime
Scottish Rite Center
6151 H Street
Sacramento
$6 - $10
www.sacanime.com
Anime convention featuring viewing room, art contest, vendor’s room, costume ball, J-pop concert, more.

January 18-22
Further Confusion 2007
DoubleTree Hotel
2050 Gateway Place
San Jose
$45 www.furtherconfusion.org
The Bay Area’s major Furry con. Art show, dealer’s room, costume contest, more.

Saturday, February 3
Gotham City Black and White Ball
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by January 27), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
Bruce Wayne requests the pleasure of your company. Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.

Friday-Saturday, February 9-10
ComBots Cup
The Crucible
1260 7th Street
Oakland
Noon-11 p.m.
$20, discounts for kids and active-duty military Fighting robots duke it out at the Crucible.
www.combots.net

February 16-19
Pantheacon
DoubleTree Hotel
2050 Gateway Place
San Jose
www.ancientways.com/pantheacon
Annual Pagan gathering with workshops, lectures, performances, rituals, drumming, dancing, costume contests, and crafts.

February 16-19
DunDraCon
San Ramon Marriott
2600 Bishop Drive
San Ramon
$50 at the door ($40 until February 1)
www.dundracon.com
Annual gaming con, with RPGs, board and card games, miniatures and more.

Tuesday, February 27
Author: China Mieville
Booksmith
1644 Haight Street
San Francisco
415-863-8688
7 p.m.
Free

Friday-Sunday, March 2-4
WonderCon
Moscone Center South
747 Howard Street
San Francisco
www.comic-con.org/wc/
Comic book/media convention with panels, dealers, summer movie previews, anime, costume contest, more.

Friday-Sunday, March 2-4
Consonance
Crowne Plaza Silicon Valley
777 Bellew Drive
Milpitas
$45 at the door ($40 until February 17)
www.consonance.org
The annual Bay Area filk convention.

Saturday, March 3
Merry Widow Waltz Ball
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by February 24), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.
(There’s a glamorous calendar available at www.cafepress.com/peers.75762076)

Sunday, March 11
Sac-Con
Scottish Rite Center
6151 H Street
Sacramento
10 a.m.-5 p.m.
$6
Comic, toy and anime show, usually has an anime costume contest.

Friday-Sunday, March 16-18
Rakkasah West
Richmond Auditorium
403 Civic Center Plaza
Richmond
www.rakkasah.com
Billed as the largest bellydance festival and fantasy bazaar in the world. Details to follow.

Saturday, April 7
Red Carpet Ball
(1930s Hollywood Academy Award Ball)
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by March 31), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.
(There’s a glamorous calendar available at www.cafepress.com/peers.75762076)

Saturday-Sunday, April 21-22
APE (Alternative Press Expo)
Concourse Exhibition Center
620 7th Street
San Francisco
www.comic-con.org/ape/
Billed as the nation’s largest show devoted to alternative and self-published comics; announced guests include Art Spiegelman (Maus).

Saturday, May 5
Sleeping Beauty’s Christening Fantasy Ball
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by April 28), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.

Friday-Monday, May 25-28
FanimeCon
San Jose Convention Center
San Jose
www.fanime.com
The Bay Area’s largest annual anime convention returns. Dealer’s room, panels, costume contest, J-pop concert, more.

Friday-Sunday, June 1-3
Dollectable
Clarion Hotel SFO
401 E. Millbrae Ave.
Millbrae
www.bjdcon.com
$65 at the door ($40 until December 1)
A convention for enthusiasts and collectors of Asian-style ball-jointed dolls.

Saturday, June 2
Space Cowboys’ Ball
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by May 26), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
Browncoats, take note. Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.

Saturday-Tuesday, June 30-July 3
Westercon 60: Gnomeward Bound
Marriott San Mateo
1770 South Amphlett Blvd.
San Mateo
spfii.org/westercon60/
Guests of Honor: Tad Williams, Theresa Mather, Christian McGuire
Toastmaster: Jay Lake

Friday-Sunday, July 27-29
Con-X-treme
DoubleTree Hotel
2050 Gateway Place
San Jose
www.con-x-treme.com
New dates for this con, about which few other details are yet known. (Apparently it will be at the DoubleTree, and there will be a Klingon bar. What more do you need to know?)

Friday-Monday, August 3-6
MythCon 38
Clark Kerr Center
2601 Warring Street
Berkeley
www.mythsoc.org
$60, $50 for Mythopoeic Society members
The annual Mythopoeic Conference returns to Berkeley with Guests of Honor Ellen Kushner and Delia Sherman.

Saturday, August 4
Pride & Prejudice Picnic
PEERS Event
Location TBA
Noon-5 p.m.
www.peers.org
An afternoon picnic and dance set in Jane Austen’s England during the late 1790s.

September 1, 2007
Mikado Ball
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by August 25), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
A Gilbert and Sullivan cast party. Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.

September 28-30, 2007
Creation’s Salute to Star Trek
DoubleTree Hotel
2001 Point West Way
Sacramento
A Creation con to celebrate the 20th Anniversary of Star Trek: The Next Generation. Details to follow.

October 6, 2007
Edwardian Gothic Ball
PEERS Event
Masonic Lodge
100 N. Ellsworth
San Mateo
$15 in advance (by September 29), $20 at the door
www.peers.org
Edwardian as in macabre illustrator Edward Gorey. Dance lesson at 7 p.m., dancing begins at 8.

November 3, 2007
Le Bal des Vampires
PEERS Event
Gotta love a group that plans this far in advance, particularly since they have a good track record of actually holding their events as scheduled. No further details available yet.
www.peers.org

April 25-28, 2008
CostumeCon 26
DoubleTree Hotel
2050 Gateway Place
San Jose
www.cc26.info
CostumeCon will be coming to Silicon Valley in 2008. Further details to follow.

Ongoing:

Daily
San Francisco Ghost Hunt Walking Tour
Beginning: Queen Anne Hotel
1590 Sutter at Octavia
San Francisco
7 p.m. – 10 p.m.
$20
www.sfghosthunt.com

Mondays
Bay Area Science Fiction Association
The Original Hick’ry Pit 980 E. Campbell Ave.
Campbell
8 p.m.
Free
www.basfa.org
Mondays
Dukefish
Jake’s of Sunnyvale
174 E. Fremont Avenue
Sunnyvale
Gather: 8 p.m, games: 8:30 p.m.
Dukefish is a bunch of people who get together to play board games and, sometimes, bridge every week.

Mondays and Wednesdays
Silicon Valley Boardgamers Match Play
San Antonio Shopping Center
Mountain View
7 p.m.
$2
Group meets regularly to play mostly German-style strategy boardgames such as Settlers of Catan; also multiplayer Avalon Hill-style, historical wargames, and others.

Wednesdays
Bay Area Role-Playing Society
Go-Getter’s Pizza
1489 Beach Park Boulevard
Foster City
6 p.m-10 p.m.
www.BayRPS.com
Hosts a weekly game night. For club and game night details email GM@BayRPS.com.

Wednesdays
East Bay Strategy Games Club
EndGame
921 Washington
Oakland
7:30 p.m.-11 p.m.
Free
www.michaeldashow.com/eastbaystrategy/home.html

Fridays
SF Games
Muddy’s Coffeehouse
1304 Valencia Street near 24th
San Francisco
7 p.m. to midnight
Free
vax.hanford.org/dk/games
SF Games is a collective name for a bunch of people who get together and play board games and card games every week. Also has a cards night on Tuesdays at Café Macondo, 3159 16th Street between Guerrero and Valencia.

Fridays-Mondays
Haunted Haight Walking Tour
Meets at PlanetWeavers/Genesis Store
1573 Haight Street (at Clayton)
San Francisco
7 p.m.-9 p.m.
$20
www.hauntedhaight.com
Reservations required.

Fridays and Saturdays Vampire Walking Tour
Meets corner of California and Taylor
San Francisco
8 p.m.
$20
www.sfvampiretour.com
Led by Mina Harker. Tour is cancelled if there is heavy rain.

Saturdays
Rocky Horror Picture Show
Parkway Speakeasy Theater
1834 Park Blvd.
Oakland
Midnight $6
www.picturepubpizza.com
Barely Legal Productions presents the classic midnight movie every Saturday night. No one under 17 admitted.

Biweekly
PenSFA Party
The Peninsula Science Fantasy Association meets every two weeks for a party at the home of one of their members. They also host parties at local conventions. Email commander@pensfa.org for information on attending.
PenSFA standard party rules: bring something edible or drinkable to share, or pay the host $2. Don’t smoke in the house without checking with the host first. Normal start time is 8 p.m. but may vary depending on the host.

Science Fiction & Fantasy Writers’ Group
Borderlands Books
866 Valencia Street
San Francisco
Meets the second and fourth Thursdays of each month at 6 pm. Contact Jade Livingston at sfscifi@yahoo.com for more information.

Monthly Dorkbot-SF
Free, donations welcome
www.dorkbot.org/dorkbotsf/
Dorkbot hosts regular forums for artists, designers, engineers, students, and other people doing strange things with electricity.

Fantastic Frontiers www.freewebs.com/fantasticfrontiers/
Social club for Sacramento County Sci Fi/
Fantasy fans usually meets the second Saturday of the month. Check website for meeting times and locations.

Foothill Anime
Building 5015, Foothill College
Los Altos Hills
Free
Monthly event where people can get together to watch anime and meet like minded others. Usually meets the first Sunday of every month at noon.

Legion of Rassilon Carl’s Junior
2551 N. First Street
San Jose
7:30 p.m.
Free
www.legionofrassilon.org
Doctor Who fan group usually meets the fourth Friday of the month: Episodes of Doctor Who, news, discussion of recent movies, and a raffle.

No-Name Anime
Saratoga Library
13650 Saratoga Avenue
Saratoga

SF Browncoats
Cafe Murano
1777 Steiner Street
San Francisco
Noon
Free
www.sfbrowncoats.com
SF Firefly/Serenity fans usually meet up on the second Saturday of the month.

Silicon Gulch Browncoats Tied House
954 Villa Street
Mountain View
Noon - 2 p.m.
Free
www.silicongulchbrowncoats.org
Silicon Valley fans of Firefly/Serenity meet up on the first Saturday of the month.

USS Defiance Meeting
Round Table Pizza
Howe Ave. (Near Howe and Arden Ave.)
7 p.m.-10 p.m.
Free
Sacramento’s oldest science fiction group meets the third Friday of the month. Info at www.ussdefiance.org.

Veritech Fighter Command ONE-THREE Round Table Pizza
4403 Elkhorn Blvd
Sacramento
916-338-2300
Anime/cosplay group usually meets the last Saturday of the month at 1800 hours (but this month’s meeting is on Nov. 18).